

2025 ANNUAL REPORT

A MESSAGE FROM GREENBELT ALLIANCE'S EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Working in the climate and environmental space is a daily commitment to renew hope and to act for change. As we witness the Environmental Protection Agency dismantle regulations meant to protect people and ecosystems from the growing threats of the climate crisis, we are also seeing regular actions by the federal government that undermine our democratic institutions and constitutional protections. In this atmosphere, our mission to prepare communities to become resilient to climate-related threats is more urgent than ever.

We are hopeful when we see places like California and the San Francisco Bay Area adopting policies that will take us into a more resilient future. Policies like Senate Bill 79, which we co-sponsored and which is now law, will unlock much-needed housing near public transit across the state. Or the impactful package of California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) reforms that Greenbelt endorsed should remove hurdles for infill development while steering clear of our open spaces and working lands. In 2025, 8 of our 11 endorsed bills were approved in the legislature!

We're also inspired by leaders who are stepping up to work for a better future in their own communities.

Our Resilient Roots: Climate Leaders Network program trained a new generation in climate literacy to build local leadership and tackle the unique challenges of our generation. Our youth team in Southwest Santa Rosa, the Climate Impact Innovators, is paving the way for a thriving and heat-resilient future in their own backyard. And in 2025, we hosted hundreds of people at dozens of community engagement workshops on sea level rise, extreme heat, and wildfire preparedness—from Alameda, to Solano, to Gilroy, and beyond.

More than ever, the strength of our connections and relationships will be vital to absorb the shocks ahead. If you are here, it's because you care deeply about centering climate resilience in our region by protecting lands and sustainably growing our existing cities and towns. Thank you for being part of our community and supporting our mission to empower communities to become safer, healthier, and capable of not only surviving, but thriving. Read on for our highlights of 2025!

Outings Coordinator Ken Lavin guiding hikers along the Tidelands Trail in Don Edwards SF Bay Wildlife Refuge in Newark.

“KING TIDES ARE A PREVIEW OF THE FUTURE. WHILE MANY PEOPLE ARE FAMILIAR WITH THE CONCEPT OF SEA LEVEL RISE, THIS PHENOMENON IS A HELPFUL WAY TO RAISE THE ISSUE, MAKING IT MUCH MORE TANGIBLE THAN A FARAWAY THREAT.”

ZOE SIEGEL, SENIOR DIRECTOR OF CLIMATE RESILIENCE, TO THE ALAMEDA POST

THE NEXT WAVE OF POLICIES, A NEW GENERATION OF LEADERS

In 2025, the Bay Area saw incredible strides towards Greenbelt Alliance's holistic vision for a balanced approach to growth, including climate-smart development and conservation. From long-overdue California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) reforms to impactful new laws that allow more homes near transit stations, these Greenbelt Alliance-backed policies are undoing historical deficits and unlocking opportunities for more resilient communities.

To navigate challenges of growing climate hazards, political and social unrest, and financial strains, our communities need the research, data, training, and connections to transform plans and solutions into actual change. Over the past year, Greenbelt Alliance has excelled at engaging and communicating with communities to advance climate resilience and preparedness—from sea level rise, to extreme heat, to housing and land-use policies.

Educate

In June, the Climate Leaders Summit brought together over 100 people to celebrate the first group of 18 Resilient Roots fellows, as they concluded a nine-month training program on climate literacy and leadership. The first-ever Resilient Roots: Climate Leaders Network program, presented by Greenbelt Alliance and Sustainable Solano, with support from the US Environmental Protection Agency, prepared the next generation of leaders in new skills for climate action. Fellows grew in their understanding of local environmental and climate issues (75%), in project design and public speaking skills (58%), and confidence as a leader (50%) as a result of their time in the program. Resilient Roots is now expanding to train more young leaders in Oakland and other communities.

Wildfire Report Launched

At a time when communities are reeling from the devastating impacts of destructive fires and losing insurance protections, Greenbelt Alliance offers a new, creative intervention for fire-prone areas statewide in our new report, Interwoven Greenbelt Buffer for Wildfire Risk Reduction. The research documents the methodology, key findings, and recommendations from the Sonoma Springs Pilot Project, in partnership with the Sonoma County Agricultural Preservation & Open Space District, Sonoma Ecology Center, Latino Service Providers, and other partners.

Building on years of research into the critical role of greenbelts in wildfire resilience, the report also introduced a new strategy to manage wildfire risk: the Interwoven Greenbelt Buffer.

Advocate

In a watershed moment for land-use policy in California, Senate Bill 79, the Abundant and Affordable Homes Near Transit Act (Wiener), was signed into law in October 2025. This bill codifies transit-oriented development by allowing more homes near major transit stops, such as BART, Caltrain, or the San Diego Trolley, and improves walkability in our communities.

Greenbelt Alliance was proud to co-sponsor this bill by Senator Scott Wiener, alongside a powerful coalition of advocates across California. This isn't just a housing win—it's a climate solution that will guide growth away from wildfire and flood-prone areas while protecting our natural and working lands.

PLUS: We remain committed to our work to prevent harmful sprawl development in Solano County, as California Forever pushes forward with their plan to build a "new community" over 16,000 acres of farmland in Eastern Solano. As they attempted to bypass voters by proposing to annex lands to Suisun City, Greenbelt Alliance collaborated with the Solano Together coalition to mobilize and educate voters in the region and stop California Forever.

Collaborate

When it comes to sea level rise, communities across the Bay Area are organizing, agencies are collaborating in new ways, and better solutions are emerging to achieve resilience goals.

Greenbelt Alliance is a driving force in this regional movement, bridging science, policy, and community power to accelerate Bay Area shoreline resilience. Over the past year, our watershed resilience efforts, collaborating with various stakeholders, have yielded tangible progress in preparing communities for rising sea levels and floods, including:

- Marking a huge regional win, San Francisco Bay Conservation & Development Commission’s Regional Shoreline Adaptation Plan (RSAP) provides the first comprehensive framework for the nine Bay Area counties to coordinate their response. The plan sets guidelines for local jurisdictions, prioritizes vulnerable communities, and positions the region to compete more effectively for federal and state funding.
- Rising Together: The Bay Adapt Summit brought together practitioners, scientists, and advocates to showcase regional adaptation progress. The second annual summit was presented by BCDC in partnership with the Exploratorium and Greenbelt Alliance.
- We are proud of the partnership-building and community-based planning efforts that we’re leading through the Oakland Alameda Adaptation Committee (OAAC). Greenbelt Alliance is a lead partner in this coalition of shoreline communities and stakeholders in Alameda and Oakland that are co-creating inclusive action plans to accelerate sea level rise - adaptations that promote habitat restoration and community resilience.

- From the Solano Bayshore Resiliency projects to nature-based solutions along the Oakland-Alameda shoreline, communities aren’t waiting. Local governments and community organizations are testing new approaches, building living shorelines, and preparing for what’s coming.
- The Hayward Regional Shoreline Adaptation Project is an example of an interagency collaboration that has led to a beautiful and functional nature-based design. As part of this effort, Greenbelt Alliance is a lead partner of the Hayward Eden Area Shoreline Resilience Collaborative.

Together, these efforts reflect how Greenbelt Alliance unifies diverse actors to advance the Bay Area’s distinct approach to sea level rise: a commitment to coordination, community voice, and solutions that work for people and nature alike.

THE ART OF GATHERING SUPPORTERS

At a time of intense screen fatigue, news burnout, and a growing yearning for authentic human connection, people are seeking meaningful ways to engage with the causes they care about.

Throughout 2025, we convened intentional gatherings designed to deepen relationships with longtime supporters, welcome new ones, and connect with our Bay Area community through joyful, neighborhood-centered events.

From our longstanding Sonoma Luncheon to happy hours across Marin, the East Bay, and the South Bay, these gatherings allow our team to share the impact of our work, strengthen relationships around our mission, and raise critical funds to advance our mission.

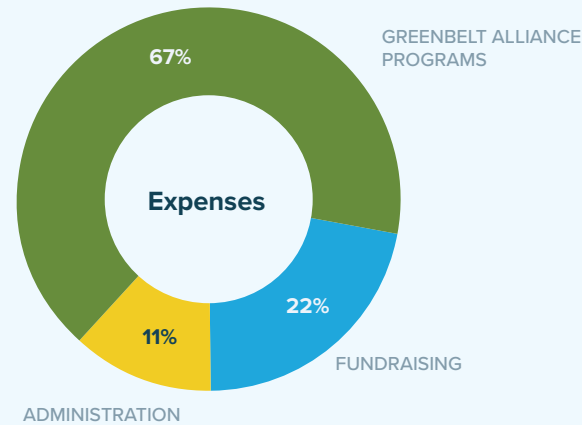

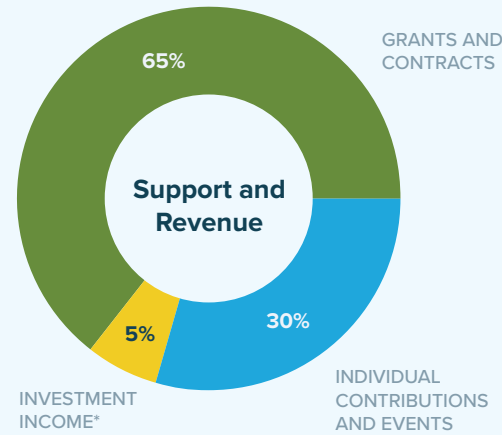

The highlight of 2025 was our incredible community event, Hidden Heroes of the Greenbelt—our biggest bash yet! Greenbelt Alliance’s fifth annual benefit brought over 200 supporters, friends, and partners together at Preservation Park for a perfect summer evening in the heart of Oakland.

Our community gathered to celebrate three extraordinary local government champions: Miguel Marquez (Don Edwards Wildlife Refuge), Danielle Mieler (City of Alameda), and Rachael Tanner (City and County of San Francisco). These local leaders are turning bold ideas into real-world solutions for a more resilient, climate-smart Bay Area, while inspiring the next generation of changemakers.

“PEOPLE MOVE BECAUSE OF FEELING, BECAUSE OF STORY, BECAUSE SOMETHING TOUCHES THEM, PERSONALLY, DEEPLY, SOULFULLY. THAT’S WHAT STORYTELLING AND ART DO. IT REMINDS US WE’RE NOT JUST TRYING TO SAVE THE PLANET. WE’RE TRYING TO CONNECT WITH EACH OTHER, AND THAT’S HOW THE PLANET SAVES US.”
